FIRST IMPRESSIONS

◇ As the Tommy Bahama Home brand enters its 24th year, the strength of the resort category has never been greater. What has evolved over time, and especially since the pandemic, is the extent to which refined and sophisticated resort styling resonates with affluent consumers living outside resort areas. Hybrid work and a yearning for travel have caused design choices to be made through the lens of lifestyle rather than physical address. Aspirational living has become the touchstone for today's interior design, and creating an aesthetic that reflects the casual elegance of destination living has become an imperative.

◇ Within sight of Miami, yet worlds away, the five-mile-long barrier island of Key Biscayne embodies the classic charm of South Florida, with pristine beaches and palm-lined streets. The island was the largest coconut plantation in the continental US during the first half of the 20th century, and that laid-back West Indies vibe remains today.

DESIGN HIGHLIGHTS

579-852 Biscayne Landing Buffet features a travertine top, 4 doors and 1 self-closing drawer all with raffia panels, and two adjustable shelves. Woven raffia is produced from the epidermal membrane on the underside of the leaf fronds of raffia palms. They are rolled together for added strength before drying, then woven together and dyed making it ideal for surface textures. Travertine is a terrestrial limestone formed by calcium carbonate minerals from fresh waters. Its high porosity makes it light in weight for its strength.

579-967 Sailfish Console highlights white Cordova veneered top, leather wrapped rattan base, and two stationary woven abaca shelves. The decorative leather wrapped rattan center upright may be displayed in the front or the back as desired. The abaca fiber is obtained from the plant leaf stalks, extracted, twisted into cordage and woven as desired. The strong fibers are flexible, durable, and highly desired for design.

579-955 Palm Island Triangular Drop-leaf Accent Table features leather wrapped rattan base with crushed bamboo top, three drop leaves, and carved trim top. Crushed bamboo is a visually appealing flat surface highlighting the natural composite material which has a high strength-to-weight ratio similar to timber. The leather wrapped rattan is the skill of binding shaped or linear to rattan stems with narrow strips of leather to create decorative designs with structural strength.

1720-11 Gables Estate Chair is a show stopper in scale and comfort for all body sizes with its ultra down seat cushion and blend down back cushion. The woven strands of split rattan can be woven as they are lightweight, durable, and to a certain extent, flexible and suitable for outdoor use (but choose our outdoor product to withstand the elements). The rattan is available only as shown in the Tidefall finish, but your choice of fabrics.
