Fresh and on-trend, our collection of Happy Vases, which includes the Happy 60 Tiered Vase, is a reminder of the carefree times during the 1960s. The artistry employed to create these terracotta beige decorative vases is called a wax-resist technique. All of the surface areas that the artisan decides will be left unglazed are covered by wax so that the glazing material cannot give it the sheen that comes with it. Though the beige and white pattern is our nod to the ultra-60s, the shapes of the decorative accents have been modernized with cleaner lines.
