Blythe Mirror Black

Iron straps sketch outside the rectangle. Sinuous black iron wraps around the rectangular Blythe mirror, creating a sculptural frame with an organic, almost Art Nouveau-inspired rhythm. The flowing straps feel free and expressive while staying balanced around the glass. Small stud accents mark the intersections, adding detail and a steady beat to the movement. A mirror with a line worth following, and then following again.

- Flowing Iron Lines: Sinuous iron straps weave around the rectangular glass, giving the Blythe mirror a free, sculptural frame, so the surface keeps changing in the light.
- Black Metal Frame: Black iron adds graphic contrast and a handcrafted feel, turning the mirror into a wall accent, so the surface keeps changing in the light.
- Studded Rhythm: Small stud accents mark the strap intersections, adding a considered finishing detail and a steady visual rhythm, so the design feels considered from every angle.
