Adair Mirror Brown

An arch gets depth, shadow, and good posture. The Adair mirror uses a classic arched shape to bring architectural rhythm to the wall, while layered stepped moulding gives the frame dimension. Mango wood adds warmth around the glass, with MDF backing providing structure behind the piece. The profile feels substantial and considered, with shadow lines that make the frame do more than sit pretty. Reflection, with framework drama.

- Arched Presence: A classic arched frame gives the Adair mirror architectural shape and an easy focal point for the wall, with a clear design point of view.
- Warm Mango Wood: Mango wood frames the glass with natural warmth, bringing depth and material character to the brown finish, letting the material carry the visual story.
- Layered Moulding: Stepped moulding builds depth around the frame, creating shadow lines that make the profile feel substantial and considered, giving the piece a clearer visual story.
